House Asserts Jurisdiction on Money Bill

WASHINGTON (AP) — The House overwhelmingly asserted its claim to original jurisdiction over money bills today by firing back to the Senate a Senate-born appropriation measure.

It was another round in the long, prestige battle between the two branches over money matters.

The House action, which was not unexpected, came on a resolution saying the Senate measure contravenes the Constitution and is "an infringement on the privileges of the House."

It was passed by roll-call vote of 245 to 1.

The dissenter was Rep. Paul G. Rogers, D-Fla.

The rejected Senate measure, passed last week, was to provide emergency financing for the Agriculture Department, whose regular annual money bill is tied up by another Senate-House disagreement.

The action was not expected to interfere with congressional adjournment plans and could expedite them by clearing the way for an agreement on the annual agriculture appropriation bill.

Democratic Leader Carl Albert of Oklahoma set up the House move by scheduling as today's first order of business a resolution only described as relating to the Senate proposal.

OUT AGAIN — Trunk murderer Winnie Ruth Judd, the notorious "Tiger Woman" of the 1930s, has escaped from the Arizona State Mental Hospital in Phoenix for the 7th time since her confinement in 1932. Miss Judd, 57, was convicted of murdering her two roommates in a jealous rage 30 years ago. Her last escape was in 1953 when she remained free for 48 hours.

Snapshots on Ground, Airline Says

WASHINGTON (AP) — Eastern Air Lines says snapshots allegedly showing stewardesses at the controls of airliners in flight were taken while the planes were on the ground.

But the airline said Tuesday that it has gone as far as it can in its investigation because the flight engineer who produced the photographs refuses to cooperate.

Robert L. Turner, Eastern's senior executive vice president, told the Federal Aviation Agency that "firm and positive steps" have been taken to make certain that not even circumstantial inferences will arise in the future that could reflect on the conduct of its flight personnel.

Turner said the airline is "determined to get at the facts" in connection with photographs identified by flight engineer D. K. (Kit) Carson as having been taken on 18 Eastern flights between May 1959 and July 1961.

Flight engineers are on strike against Eastern and a key issue in the dispute is whether pilots or engineers should hold the third job in jet cockpit crews.

Turner said the photographs contained implied accusations against 14 persons. Four of the 14, he said, have been identified after an investigation.

Only two photographs showed a stewardess in a cockpit seat, said Turner, and it has been determined both pictures were on the same woman.

Eastern, he said, is trying to locate the stewardess, who resigned in November 1960 to be married.

Turner also contended that company records show that Carson was not on some of the flights on which he said he took the pictures.

Carson's was one of two sets of photographs produced by engineers alleging pilot laxity.

HE SUCCEEDS Frank J. Starzel, whose retirement, effective at the end of this week, was announced Tuesday night.

26 Killed in Train Wreck in Poland

WARSAW, Poland (AP) — Twenty-eight persons died and at least 62 were injured when a derailed express train was rammed by the Moscow-Vienna-Rome Express Tuesday night, the Polish press agency reported.

The casualty toll may rise, since all passengers have not been accounted for, officials were quoted as saying.

Earlier reports said no foreigners were among the dead.

But the press agency listed a Hungarian woman among 13 identified bodies.

Among the injured were four Hungarian diplomats.

The freak wreck occurred at Moszczenica, 80 miles south of Warsaw.

At least 16 coaches of the two fast international trains left the rails, blocking the Warsaw-Prague-Vienna main line.

The nationalities of the casualties could not be learned immediately. Officials said the number of dead and wounded might go higher.

Officials said 11 coaches of the Warsaw-bound express from Budapest left the track when the train hit some broken rails. Two of the coaches blocked the southbound track.

Moments later, the southbound express for Vienna hit the wreckage at 60 miles an hour.

Officials would not comment on the possibility that saboteurs or vandals had removed sections of the track on the northbound line.

But the chief district prosecutor went from Lodz to the scene.

The wreck occurred at Moszczenica, about halfway between Warsaw and Katowice in Southern Poland.

Workmen spent the night cutting apart twisted steel coaches and moving injured passengers to hospitals in nearby towns. All ambulances in the district were pressed into service.

Probe Into Stabbing Is Pushed

TRUMANN, Ark. (AP) — Point County officials pushed an investigation today into the fatal stabbing of Claude Webb, about 63, a wealthy landowner who lived alone on Highway 63 about four miles south of Trumann.

Webb's body was found in the kitchen of his home at 1:40 p.m. Tuesday by Cleotha Sullins, an employee of a neighbor.

Coroner Paul Thompson said Webb had been dead at least eight hours and the slaying probably occurred early Monday night.

Sheriff C. E. Sullivan said Webb's wallet was missing and the telephone had been ripped from the wall. Nothing except the wallet seemed to be missing, Sullivan said, and there was no evidence of a struggle.

Thompson said Webb died from two stab wounds, made by a large knife, in his back. He suffered several other back wounds and lacerations on the head. The murder weapon was not found.

Sullins discovered the body when he went into the house to investigate some water that was running out. He had gone into Webb's driveway to pick up a load of cotton from a nearby field.

Sullivan declined to discuss possible leads in the slaying.

Large Oil Firms Under Indictment

LOS ANGELES (AP) — The Justice Department, in a civil antitrust suit, has accused three of the nation's largest oil companies of agreeing not to compete with each other.

A department spokesman says the U. S. District Court is being asked in the action to stop Richfield, Sinclair and Cities Service from allocating markets.

The suit accuses Cities Service and Sinclair of agreeing not to compete with Richfield or each other in California, Oregon, Washington, Idaho, Nevada and Arizona.

In turn, it was alleged, Richfield agreed not to compete in the rest of the country with the other two companies.

The suit also asks the court to direct Cities Service and Sinclair to sell their stock holdings in Richfield, the spokesman said, and asks directors in Cities Service and Sinclair be required to resign from Richfield's board of directors.

Also named in the suit were several directors of the three firms and two other companies, Empire Gas and Fuel Co. of New York, a Cities Service subsidiary, and Sinclair Delaware Corp. of New York, a subsidiary of Sinclair.

Redevelopment at Malvern

LITTLE ROCK (AP) — The Area Redevelopment Administration has been asked to declare Malvern a redevelopment area, Employment Security Division Administrator J. L. Bland said today.

Bland said the city had been declared an area with substantial and persistent unemployment by the Bureau of Employment Security of the U. S. Department of Labor.

Ten other areas in the state have similar classifications. They are De Queen, Walnut Ridge, Camden, Clarksville, Morrilton, Ozark, Mena, Stamps and Waldron.

As a redevelopment area, Malvern would qualify for aid from the ARA.

U.S. to Name Students in Ole Miss Riot

OXFORD, Miss. (AP) — The Justice Department plans to let the University of Mississippi deal with 26 students involved in the disturbances that greeted James H. Meredith's enrollment last week.

Deputy U.S. Atty. Gen. Nicholas Katzenbach said documentary evidence about the students' role would be turned over to Ole Miss officials today. Earlier, they were given a list of students the Justice Department said took part in the riots that left two dead and scores injured.

The material prepared by the Justice Department for the university includes tapes, transcripts and photographs of the role students played in the campus disorders.

Katzenbach said putting disciplinary action in the hands of the university did not mean that no criminal charges would be filed against any students.

It was learned that photographs of students who jeered and yelled at Meredith outside the university cafeteria Monday night were being turned over to university officials.

In Washington, Army Secretary Cyrus R. Vance said Negro troops were not used on patrols at first to avoid "unnecessary incidents."

But he said they were now being used for "all normal functions in all operations."

The Army announced withdrawal of another 5,900 regular Army troops from the Mississippi-Tennessee area, bringing to 11,300 the number pulled out in two days.

Some 10,000 troops remain in the immediate Oxford vicinity.

The Army also directed release from federal service of 30 percent of 3,000 Mississippi National Guardsmen still on duty.

Meredith issued his first public statement on the events of the last 10 days. He criticized the Army for segregating Negro troops and took a verbal shot at an official of the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People who had implied Meredith was picked by the NAACP for the integration attempt.

Calling the statement "an insult to my dignity," Meredith said it was untrue. The NAACP later issued a statement that Meredith had come to the group with his plans to apply and "was thus self selected."

McClellan to Push His Book

LITTLE ROCK (AP) — Sen. John L. McClellan will play the role of author today, autographing copies of his book at three stores. In the book, "Crime Without Punishment," is a story of McClellan's Senate Rackets Committee and its investigation of the underworld. It will be published nationally Oct. 18 but went on sale here Tuesday.

McClellan said Tuesday the committee probably would hold more hearings on crime next year. Its staff is making preliminary investigations, he said. He would not list the specific areas to be probed but said narcotics and crime in sports are two of them.

The book contains McClellan's plea for action against organized crime and a warning that the menace of the "crime industry" is increasing.

"The secret army of criminals in our nation today is allowed to continue to wage war because our citizens do not affirmatively enlist in their own army in order to fight back," McClellan wrote.

The power of crime syndicates is increasing, McClellan said, and even if interstate crime is controlled, local courts will have added burdens because the operations will go on a decentralized state level.

Discussing findings of his committee in labor-management investigations, McClellan asserts infiltration of ruthless men into top echelons of both labor and management has a direct effect on the American pocketbook.

McClellan now heads the Senate Investigations Subcommittee and he said it has "greater investigatory powers and broader jurisdiction than any committee has ever had."

It now has been charged specifically with investigation of interstate, syndicate crime, he added.

When the committee first was organized, it investigated only government operations. When the old Senate Rackets Committee was disbanded, however, it investigative powers were transferred to the subcommittee.

Mineral Springs Student Killed

NASHVILLE, Ark. (AP) — An 18-year-old Mineral Springs high school student was killed Tuesday night when his car crashed into some trees four miles south of Mineral Springs on State Highway 27.

State Trooper Wallace Parnell identified the boy as Gary M. Cullough, quarterback for the Mineral Springs High School football team. Charles Barton, 15-year-old teammate, a passenger in the car, escaped injury.

The trooper said McCullough was driving east when the car plunged into a ditch and then crashed into the trees. The boy was dead on arrival at a Nashville hospital.

Parnell said the accident was caused by poor visibility due to gathering fog and moisture on the car windshield.

Prisoner Deal With Cuba to Cost Taxpayer

By JACK BELL

WASHINGTON (AP) — The American taxpayer apparently will have to pay a share of the bill if prisoners taken in the abortive Cuban invasion are released.

Members of Congress who have been kept up to date on the progress of negotiations between New York attorney James B. Donovan and Prime Minister Fidel Castro for an exchange of 1,113 men captured in the April 1961 fiasco indicated they expect emergency funds to be used.

There have been reports that the Central Intelligence Agency would come up with some of the money. But a Congress member in a position to know said he does not believe any final decision has been made.

Castro has asked for payment of $2 million for release of the prisoners. Donovan is attempting to work out an agreement for the furnishing of food and medicine to Cuba in return for their release.

Some members of Congress said they do not believe a private organization such as the Cuban Prisoners Committee could come close to raising any such sum as $2 million or could assemble food and medicine valued at that amount.

This leads them to the assumption that government supplies and money will be utilized to seal any barter bargain.

Castro postponed a scheduled meeting with Donovan Tuesday, informed sources reported. They said Castro put off the session so he could welcome Cuban President Osvaldo Dorticos back from the United Nations.

Dorticos declined comment when asked about the prisoner situation before his departure from New York.

State Department press officer Lincoln White said no agreement had been reached, but negotiations were continuing.

A word of caution was injected by informed Washington sources into speculation that the prisoners' release was imminent.

These sources said there still were some possible barriers to an agreement and warned that premature disclosure of negotiation details could make those barriers more difficult to surmount.

Havana sources had said that only one final meeting between Donovan and Castro stood in the way of the prisoners' liberation. They said Donovan had arranged for the prisoners' air transportation to Miami.

There was every reason to believe Kennedy and other high officials hoped the negotiations would be successful. The White House in the past has looked with approval on efforts to free the prisoners.

But the Kennedy administration has taken extraordinary precautions to cloak any activities in which it has engaged in connection with the negotiations. Sources report the President never has discussed the matter with congressional leaders at frequent White House sessions.

With a few scattered exceptions, Senate and House members profess to be completely in the dark on what is going on.

First Wife Interference

By HELEN WORDEN ERSKIN
Dear Helen: I am a college graduate, past 40, and married to a man who divorced his first wife after 25 years. I did not break up their home, having been introduced to him by friends at a time when the separation was an accomplished fact. He is a smart and wonderful husband. We get along fine, but some things worry me a good deal.

My husband had three children of college age whom he left in his ex-wife's full control. Although he is happy with me, he misses the children and they need him. They are nice to me but their mother tells them that I am no good. She also doesn't want my husband and me to be seen together in the town where she lives, a few miles from us. She claims that the children object, but I think it is her idea exclusively.

Their oldest boy is planning to be married soon and wants both his parents at the wedding. My husband's ex says she will not go if I do; my husband says he will not go if I don't. Should I write or call her and try to make an amicable arrangement, or should I try to please my husband? He supports both his ex and the minor children, but I do not feel it is enough, and the oldest boy, even if he is past 21, needs help to complete his college education. I have some money of my own which I planed to use to furnish our home and keep my car. Should I contribute this money, instead, to round out the support of the children and thus remove a possible cause of friction between them and my husband?

Dear Perplexed: Many a second marriage comes under threat of attack by an ex-wife who won't bow out of the picture. Such women either don't realize or won't accept the fact that their divorces are final. They continue to cast a long shadow over the lives of their former mates. The situation is one which requires extremely delicate handling by the new wife.

There is no point in picking a fight with your husband's ex, but neither should you let her dictate the way your marriage is run. Keep in mind that the only demands she can make on your husband concern those responsibilities which he legally assumed under the divorce agreement. She certainly has no right to insist that you and your husband not be seen together in her town, and no right to bar you from any place he chooses to take you.

But in the case of his son's wedding, I would let discretion be your guide. Rather than risk creating a scene before or at the ceremony, persuade your husband to go without you explain that you are not yielding to his ex-wife's whims but merely trying to prevent the embarrassment to the bride and groom that would result if his ex-wife acted up. But by no means talk with her about the matter. That would look like a surrender to her authority, and would be hopeless besides.

It would be a mistake to offer to pitch in with your own money to add to your step-children's support. Your husband might resent this as the kind of interference you object to on other scores from Wife No. 1. The best you can do in this regard is to continue to build a happy climate within your own home so that when the children visit they will find it a pleasant environment in which to renew their ties with their father. This will at one and the same time remind him of their need for him and strengthen their affection for you.

Dear Helen: I am 14, but look 18. At school my age is generally known and I have no trouble. The difficulty comes when I visit my father aboard the ship where he is an officer. The junior officers and some of the sailors often ask me for a date. Not wanting to go out with them because of my real age, I turn them down without any explanation. I am afraid that they interpret my refusals as snobbery because of Dad's rank. The truth is that I am a firm believer in no rank preferences whatever. How do I work my way out of this dilemma? —Underage

Dear Underage: Honesty is not only the best policy but the best practice for you to pursue with the sailors and young officers on your father's ship. The next time one of them asks for a date, tell him your true age. Explain that you do not yet feel the time is ripe for you to embark on this kind of social life. By taking this tack, you will give the impression not of snobbery, but of sincerity.

Dear Helen: I'm a 19-year-old boy beset by girl problems. Right now it is a nurse in the hospital where I work as an orderly.

When I try to talk to her, she gives me the cold shoulder. In despair I wrote her two letters. Silence. If we meet in a corridor, she says, "Hello," and keeps on going. Should I do the same? Her face is before me night and day. —Junior

Dear Junior: Right! Give her a dose of her own medicine. Keep on going. You're young. There is safety in numbers. Play the field.

Send your problem to Helen Worden Erskine. Be sure to enclose a stamped, self-addressed envelope and address her care of this newspaper. Helpful leaflets available. Write for "The Way to a Girl's Heart!"

Spa Woman Is Drowned in Lake

HOT SPRINGS, Ark. (AP)—A Hot Springs woman drowned in Lake Hamilton today when her car plunged off a bridge and landed upside down in water 15 feet deep. The body of Azell Bell, 50, was recovered only after the car was pulled from the water. The sheriff's office sent skin divers and they reached the car but the woman's body was pinned inside by the front seat and the steering wheel. Officers said she turned a sharp curve on the Fish Hatchery Road and the car careened off the bridge, which had no guardrails.

Thinks Hogs Will Win Over Bears

By HAROLD CLAASSEN Associated Press Sports Writer NEW YORK (AP)—The World Series teams are battling again today, leaving us just room enough to give you the winners of this weekend's college football games.

Last week's assortment of upsets had 12 losers among the 49 games that went to a decision for a .755 average. Alabama over Houston: Alabama, the nation's No. 1 team, supposedly has a weakness at fullback but Houston won't be able to prove it.

Texas over Oklahoma: The Longhorns probably aren't as strong as a year ago and the Sooners are better but Texas has enough margin to win.

Pen State over Army: The Pennsylvania Lions have only two full teams, Army boasts of three but the Cadets do not have either Dave Robinson or Roger Kochman.

Louisiana State over Miami: The Miami tigers have squeaked to three straight triumphs. The Bayou Bengals stop the streak right there.

Washington over Oregon State: The Huskie defense to keep Terry Baker bottled up.

Arkansas over Baylor: The defensive-minded Pioneers have the young fullbacks to duplicate last year's 23-13 triumph.

Purdue over Miami (Ohio): A chance for the Boilermaker subs to earn their letters.

Ohio State over Illinois: This is the Illinois homecoming and the grads will be saddened by what coach Woody Hayes' angered Buckeyes, spilled by UCLA a week ago, will do to their team.

Georgia Tech over Tennessee: Tennessee has line problems. Georgia Tech has Dave Watson and Rufus Guthrie, twin candidates for All-America at guard.

UCLA over Colorado State University: The Coloradoans have lost 19 in a row.

Wisconsin over Notre Dame: Pat Richter, giant pass catching end, gives the Badgers the nod.

Pittsburgh over West Virginia: The Mountaineers haven't been scored upon this year but the Panthers will pick up enough points to win.

Duke over California: The Dukes have an efficient passing attack plus Jay Wilkinson while California has many, many sophomores.

XXXIII Youngblood's first thought was that Doc was needed for one of the men who had been wounded the day before.

Then he thought about Lila and he felt helpless. He could remember her saying, "August the first, it's my time." He tried to put it out of his mind, because he knew there was nothing he could do, even if he had been free to do something. Maybe it was just as well that he was busy. He told himself to stop his stupid, useless worrying about it, but the admonition had little effect.

When Ivey was brought out, the hush spread across the crowd again as the word was whispered back. People craned their necks and stood on tiptoe to see him. Andy and Slim still held his arms and the sheriff came behind. The prisoner was arguing and digging his boot heels into the ground.

The crowd gave them plenty of room but closed in behind them as they went. The sheriff became exasperated with the delay. He grasped Ivey's legs and pushed the long-heeled boots roughly from his feet.

When they were by the steps, Youngblood asked the sheriff, "Don't you want me down there?" The sheriff grunted a "No," and they brought Ivey up without his dirty bare feet once touching the rough new plank steps. Andy and Slim were dripping with perspiration.

The sheriff came around to face his prisoner. "If you got anything to say, say it right now, Ivey. But don't ask for any deals."

Ivey cursed him. It was well that Youngblood had kept his vigil. Past the corner of the courthouse he could see two and a half blocks down the street to the bank. As soon as the figure came out the door, the deputy noticed him. It was the tall figure of Stephen Pendergrass, and the object in his hand was unmistakably a rifle or shotgun. Youngblood tapped the sheriff on the shoulder and pointed. The sheriff gazed, uncertain. "Maybe you better let me have the rifle," he said to the deputy. "It's my responsibility." They waited while the big man came slowly to the first cross street.

The clatter of hooves came sudden and loud. It was one rider, going fast. He came from a block west of main street. When he moved into sight
